

High-level architecture diagram - User activity logging subsystem

Application node cluster which includes UI nodes and task nodes. Nodes with business logic will create user activity logs and write to log files. Task will segregate the logs based on different criteria's and push to different message queues like SQS.

From SQS, worker jobs will write logs to Cassandra.

